ALLIANCE OF THERAPY DOGS

MISSION STATEMENT

Alliance of Therapy Dogs (ATD) is an international registry of certified therapy dog teams. We provide testing, certification, registration, support, and insurance for members who volunteer with their dogs in animal assisted activities. Our objective is to form and support our network of caring individuals and special dogs who share smiles and joy with people, young and old alike.

MAGICAL MIRACLE MOMENTS

We would like to hear about your story of a very special or “magical” moment you and your wonderful dog experienced in your volunteer work. Examples may be a patient who has been totally unresponsive until a dog visits and, the next thing you know, they are smiling, petting the dog, a tear running down their face. Or a child who simply cannot read, and one day reads an entire book to a therapy dog.

These articles should focus only on the special, unique moment, not the everyday miracles we experience with our dogs on regular visits.

Requirements:

- 1,000 words or less
- Author's name, city and state
- Photos with photo releases attached
- In a format able to be edited, such as a word document

If your story is not published in this section it may be published in another section and/or on Facebook.

All communications regarding applications for membership, renewals, concerns, issues, general questions and requests for merchandise are processed by the corporate office and should be sent to:

President's Message

Kim and Rowan

The warmth we feel when volunteering can be in juxtaposition to the rules and regulations that govern a non-profit. It isn't just the big infractions that jeopardize a business. Many small rule breaks can add up to a huge headache. In our business we know: 1) Dogs nor the people we visit are robots. 2) Visits occur with unknown influences all around. Rules reduce the risks that might otherwise occur. Seems simple, but is it?

It might surprise you to know rules and regulations set out in the ATD Member and T/O Handbook are driven by our insurance company. Why? Because all those smiles and joy we provide comes down to one thing: risk management. Liability insurance protects the members and the organization from unforeseen accidents. By mandating rules and regulations set forth through insurance, ATD can minimize the likelihood that something will go wrong during a visit. Insurers also require proof that the organization is minimizing risks, thus our handbooks. If the insurance risk is deemed too high (i.e. six-foot leash, photos published without photo authorization, wrong collars, lapsing on renewal, Eek – a bite!) the insurance company can refuse payment or even drop ATD as an organization.

Take, for example, Member Handbook Rule and Regulations #4. Volunteer Handler/Dog Teams and Dogs at Work. A registered therapy dog is comforting and loving regardless as to whether the handler is a paid employee or a volunteer. But, if someone receives a scratch from the dog while the handler is “on the clock,” insurance will not cover the accident. Another great example: timely payment of membership fees. ATD membership fees pay for the liability insurance that covers each individual team. Lapsed payment of ATD membership is the same as not paying car or house insurance on time. If you are not up to date and an accident occurs, you will not be covered by insurance. A lack of grace period isn't ATD's office idea of being mean. Up-to-date membership is a mandate of maintaining ATD insurance. Look at When and How do I Renew? found in the 2022 Member Handbook Page 17 so that you are never caught unprotected.

No doubt keeping insurance in the back of your mind while reading through the Member and T/O Handbook is the least fun part of volunteering. However, it is absolutely an important factor to keep in mind when bringing smiles and joy to those you visit. Insurance requires risk management but also protects you as the handler and enables us to live out ATD's mission statement: . . . to form and support our network of caring individuals and special dogs who share smiles and joy with people, young and old alike.

Speaking of rules, April 1, 2022, ATD will resume members to complete one in-person visit every three months pursuant to Rule 15. You can find the full update on Page 6 in the Newsmagazine and in the member portal.

Having strong rules and regulations can seem a negative while volunteering, but those very rules open the doors for adventure. ATD has taken steps to create positive outcomes, create better experiences for the people we visit, give facilities the assurance that we are mitigating risks, strengthen our mission, and create a strong and respected organization.

Getting back to the warm side of volunteering, read about the 2021 Outstanding Member Award winner Robert DeSalvo on Page 18. ATD is making a push to encourage more youths to participate in pet therapy. Find out more about our Junior Handler program in this issue on Page 20. Do you know of an organization with teens that would like more information about the program? The office can provide flyers as well as other material for talks and booths. Sit back and enjoy the stories of your fellow ATD teams. If you have a story you would like to share in the newsmagazine, follow the steps outlined on Page 8.

Go forth and bring the fuzzy feelings. The rules and regulations are there so that you and your dog can do what you do best.

Finnegan, Belle and Rowan

COVID-19 PANDEMIC UPDATE

EFFECTIVE February 1, 2022, through July 31, 2022

The ATD Board of Directors reviewed the rules and regulations related to COVID-19. The board will post this and all future updates in your member portal under Member Resources, on Facebook and Instagram and will send email blasts. Please check those locations frequently for any new announcements.

Barring exigent circumstances, these rules and regulations will remain in place until July 31, 2022.

FOR ATD MEMBERS

ATD continues to require members to follow the rules established by the facility they visit. If facility rules conflict with ATD rules, contact the ATD office at office@therapydogs.com or (307) 432-0272 for guidance. Please follow the state and local rules and guidelines set forth by the CDC.

ATD is resuming the requirement to complete one in-person visit every three months, outlined below. Teams across the country are resuming in-person visits and dogs need to get back into the of regular visiting; however, if a member cannot resume in-person visits due to local restrictions or health concerns, the member can maintain their membership by following the process outlined in Rule 21 in the Member Handbook.

Rule 21 states: If a team fails to make one visit every three months, they must be re-observed at least one time by an ATD T/O. If a team fails to make a visit within six months of a previous visit, a full retest is required to reinstate membership. The team becomes inactive and is not covered by insurance until re-tested and paperwork is approved by the office.

Beginning April 1, 2022, ATD will require members to complete one in-person visit every three months pursuant to Rule 15. While virtual or no-contact (e.g. window) visits may still be logged as a visit in the member portal, they do not count as a visit under Rule 15. An official ATD therapy dog visit means an in-person visit where the primary reason is to provide pet therapy with a mutual understanding between the handler and the facility or person receiving the visit that the handler/dog team will provide volunteer animal-assisted therapy while following ATD's rules and regulations and that such interaction will be covered by ATD's liability insurance so long as all rules are followed. Full visit and facility guidelines can be found in the member handbook under Section II.

Logging visits, both in person and virtual, on the member portal is strongly encouraged. Thank you for all you are doing with your special dogs!

TESTING UPDATES FOR T/Os

- Beginning April 1, 2022, T/Os will no longer be able to remain temporarily suspended because of COVID. If a T/O is uncomfortable testing, the T/O can take a leave of absence per the ATD policy in the Tester Observer Handbook under General Guidelines 6.
- Neither COVID vaccines nor masks are required for a team to be tested; however, if a T/O only uses a facility that requires a COVID vaccine and the prospective handler is not vaccinated, the T/O may refer the prospective team to another T/O in the area or to the office for guidance on testing options.
- The requirement for two of the three observations to be in a medical facility continues to be waived, but is strongly encouraged. All three observations can be done at a dog friendly public space like a hardware store, pet supply store, public park, or outdoor shopping space. T/O's must follow all other testing and observation rules and guidelines.

Looking for a Few Good Volunteers

Do you ever wonder how you can help others experience the satisfaction you feel when you take your dog on a pet therapy visit? If you do, you have an opportunity to take the concept of “Sharing Smiles and Joy” to new heights by becoming a Tester/Observer.

If you have practical experience working with dogs and are good at reading their body language, please consider becoming a T/O. Here are some of the dog-related attributes we look for in a T/O candidate:

- Experience in teaching or assisting in teaching dog training classes
- Training dogs for performance venues such as obedience, agility or herding
- Fostering and rehoming dogs
- Interaction on various levels with a wide variety of breeds—including both large and small dogs
- Assisting T/Os and learning to determine under what circumstances teams successfully complete the testing process
- Reading a variety of books by animal trainers and behaviorists and/or attending seminars on training and behaviors

T/Os are role models for Alliance of Therapy Dogs and as such must know and follow all rules and regulations and be able to convey them to new and prospective members. Good “people skills” are essential to communicating effectively and tactfully with people.

There are additional abilities which may qualify you as well, so please contact the office for your application packet. Join us in our mission to provide registration and support for prospective members in volunteer assisted activities.

Spotlight on . . . Jared Wadley, Newsmagazine editor

When did you join ATD?

I joined in 2010 when the organization was called Therapy Dogs Inc.

What prompted you to volunteer for therapy dog work? What challenges, if any, happened as you embarked on this effort?

During a walk to a meeting at the University of Michigan, I came upon a group of therapy dogs and service dogs interacting with students.

I spoke to several participants and realized that becoming a therapy dog handler was an ideal endeavor. At the time, I had two Shetland Sheepdogs that loved to bark. I decided the next dog I adopted would be trained to do therapy work. Less than two years later, two-year-old Bella (collie) became part of the family.

The challenge involved training a rescue dog that hadn't been socialized with other dogs. I knew that it would require many hours of training, but I was willing to devote the time. The process took more than eight months – mainly exposing Bella to dogs of all sizes – before she was comfortable without leash pulling or barking when seeing other dogs.

What was your most memorable therapy visit?

In 2012, during a visit to the University of Michigan's Cardiovascular Center, Bella and I entered a dimly lit room with an elderly patient recovering from surgery. His 10-year-old grandson had been playing with action figures, but his attention shifted to the dog. The visit was pleasant. As we proceeded to leave, the boy petted Bella one final time and said, "When I grow up, I want to be a handler just like you and have a dog like Bella." For him to verbally express that sentiment was emotional. Ten years later, the moment still resonates with me.

What motivates you to do what you do?

Seeing the impact of a five- or 10-minute visit motivates me to continue pet therapy. Also, it allows me to teach others about pet responsibility so that there are fewer misbehaving dogs that end up in shelters or abandoned on the streets.

Your family has had more than one ATD member; both of your sons were junior handlers. Describe their experiences in the organization.

My sons, who are now in college, joined the organization at ages 12 and 14. When Jordan became a junior at 12, he was the youngest to ever join our local chapter. Decades ago, most kids who joined the organization were around 15 or 16 years old. Because of Jordan's maturity level and commitment, it allowed our board of directors, including two who were testers, to feel comfortable about changing our policies to allow kids younger than age 14 to become members. Being in the organization gave him confidence to speak to strangers. He is a senior at the University of Michigan.

Devin, who attends La Salle University in Philadelphia, excelled immediately in the program. His experiences of meeting new people, especially at colleges, served him well to share his love of dogs.

They both have enjoyed being handlers. It's given them a greater appreciation for dogs and allowed them to see the importance of volunteering. I've been extremely proud of them as young ATD ambassadors. Accompanying them on visits has created great father-son bonding moments.

How has therapy dog visits changed your life?

As a child whose family had a German Shepherd, one career aspiration was to become a veterinarian. I loved being around dogs but decided to pursue a career in journalism then later in public relations. Being a therapy dog handler combines the best of both worlds: interacting with a dog and volunteering. This experience has given me joy and fulfillment. My life has been tremendously enriched by those I've met through this organization.

What do you wish the public knew about ATD?

At its core, being a therapy dog handler is taking your obedient dog for a walk and talking to people. ATD enables members to make a difference in people's lives — and I don't think as many people focus on that. Some people are unwilling to invest time into training their dogs, which sadly has ended in many dogs relinquished to rescues and shelters.

What might someone (non-family member or close friends) be surprised to know about you?

That my volunteering is based on three mottos:

As told to me as a child by my mother, who has been a long-time volunteer in her community: "Tomorrow is never promised to you."

From my childhood, as a collector of Spider-Man comic books: "With great power, comes great responsibility." Many of us are fortunate to have what we have, and it's important (or a responsibility) to give back to others.

From church: “For I was hungry and you gave me something to eat. I was thirsty and you gave me something to drink. I was a stranger and you invited me in.” The volunteer work that we do provides mental comfort to those we meet, and I cherish those moments.

If you could give one piece of advice to a new therapy team, what would it be?

Savor every moment. You will have special times with your dog, but time waits for no one as retirement approaches. Legend, my current therapy dog of eight years, will retire this summer. We’ve had many experiences and I’m sad that it will end soon. That sadness is brief. It turns into joy and anticipation as I train a new dog (Bree, who is also a collie) to become a therapy dog for ATD testing in February 2023.

For this next chapter in therapy work, there will be new efforts. I’ve signed up with the American Red Cross to do therapy visits at military bases in Michigan. After two years with ATD, the new dog will hopefully pass tests to become an animal-assisted crisis response member.

If you weren’t volunteering for ATD, what would you be doing instead?

When I lived in California (1996-2002), I volunteered for Big Brothers/Big Sisters, at a homeless shelter and Sheepfold, which helps families in domestic violent situations. I would probably find a Michigan organization that helped one of the latter two efforts.

Editor’s Note:

In general, only board members serve on board committees. However, on rare occasions, the board might seek feedback from a professional if someone on the board doesn’t have the needed skills or knowledge. Jared Wadley joined the Newsmagazine staff in July 2012 after asking the board if he could be of assistance given his extensive journalism and public relations background. The board welcomed him to the editorial staff, and now he celebrates his 10th anniversary volunteering on the committee. A 1989 journalism graduate from Bowling Green State University (Ohio), where he was inducted into the 2019 Kappa Tau Alpha Hall of Fame for his career, Jared is currently a lead public relations representative at the University of Michigan and a board member of Therapaws of Michigan, Inc.

WRITTEN ON 10/20/21:

AS OF TODAY, THE FIRES ARE FINALLY OUT!

On July 13, 2021, the Dixie fire started north of the Reno, Nevada, area, burning almost 1 million acres. It is still burning though with over 90% contained. To make matters worse, one month later, on August 14, the Caldor fire started south of the Reno area, burning almost 250,000 acres. It is also still burning though over 90% contained. The massive response by firefighters and support crew was ongoing, day after day, night after night, week after week. Some firefighters lost their homes while battling to save other homes. The emotional and financial toll in both fire areas is immeasurable.

To alleviate the fatigue and bring a bright spot to the firefighters, the dedicated Paws 4 Love ATD Therapy Dog Teams visited multiple times to both camp sites. They spent time listening and simply having the dogs do what they do best. The crews were relieved and happy to see our four-legged friends, bringing a sense of normalcy to this difficult situation. There truly is nothing better than seeing the warm eyes, soft nose, and wagging tail of a therapy dog.

We are proud of our teams that show up to support our First Responders. They know how important therapy dog visits are and how much it helps the crews that are often away from their homes, families, and pets for long periods of time. Thank you to all the teams.

An Unforgettable Christmas

It was our usual day of the week for volunteering at Hospice House. No one was expecting volunteers on Christmas. In the afternoon, I felt a compelling urge to visit there with my English Springer Spaniel, Chevy. On arrival, we approached a woman who was sitting on a bench out front crying. As she petted Chevy, she told me about her friend, "Mary," who had been dealing with a degenerative neuromuscular disease for several years. Much admired for her zest for life, Mary had planned her dream road trip. More than 1,000 miles from home, her disease had taken a rapid, devastating turn, leaving her no chance for survival.

Mary was now confined to a hospice bed with much of her body, including arms, legs, and even her voice, no longer functioning. When Chevy and I entered the room, Mary's eyes lit up. It was obvious to me that although unable to move or speak, she was still aware of her surroundings. I gently coaxed Chevy to put his front paws on her bed so Mary could see him up close. Simultaneously, Chevy and I spotted a stuffed toy which someone had placed on her abdomen. Chevy became fixated on the toy, determined to not take his eyes off of it! I saw amusement on Mary's face as I commanded Chevy to "Leave it!" and laughingly exclaimed, "He thinks it's his!"

Chevy and I visited with Mary and her friend for a while that day. At the end of our visit, I turned towards Mary, knowing it would be the last time I would see her. I'll never forget that moment – seeing Mary's eyes sparkling as she mouthed to me the words, "Merry Christmas."

Alliance of Therapy Dogs Junior Handlers

Sharing Smiles & Joy

Have you ever considered volunteering with your dog?

Volunteering with a therapy dog is a fun and meaningful way to give back to your community. It is a different type of volunteering that reaches out to people of all ages who are unable to have their dog with them or can no longer have a dog due to life changes.

Do you have goals to meet? Volunteering with your dog can help you meet them.

Kai & Callie

Paso Robles, CA

Everything I've done with Callie through ATD has been such a great experience. But one of my favorites is when we were testing. We were at the park and visited some young kids that were playing. It was so life-giving to see the looks on the kids' faces when they saw the dogs give them a high five or twirl in a circle. I loved watching my dog's reaction to it and how fun it was for her to do something new for someone. It was so special to see how much of an impact we made on these young lives.

Ashlyn & Piper

Pendergast, GA

I first became interested in becoming a therapy dog team because I believed my dog had the most wonderful personality for therapy visits, and I wanted to serve my community. She needed a job, and bringing joy to people's lives with her was a great way to accomplish both.

Chris & Baby

Cheyenne, WY

I started as a junior handler as a volunteer opportunity for Boy Scouts, but quickly therapy dogs eclipsed Boy Scouts. It was clear to me that our weekly visits heartened the patients in a way that was so meaningful to both them and me. On top of that, the therapy dog teams were an interesting and dedicated group of people and dogs to get to know!

Caytlin & Ruby

Santa Maria, CA

I wanted to become a handler because I love working with dogs and people. The patients' or students' faces light up when you enter the room. I have always loved dogs so much and loved the therapy dog visits at my school. I wanted to be a part of something using my dog to bring joy to these people as my dog brings joy to me.

Lexi & Tahoe

Paso Robles, CA

I became a handler because I have seen how happy people are when they get to interact with dogs or just even see the dog. I have organized routine visits at my greatgrandma's assisted living home and the people light up every time we come. Many of the them have great memories of when they had dogs or animals back when they were kids.

Jordan, Devin & Legend

Ypsilanti, MI

We have more than eight years combined as junior handlers of two collies.

What's amazing about being an ATD junior handler is the reaction of those in the community seeing young people volunteering. Individuals cherish the time with our therapy dog, Legend, but they always comment about how appreciative they are seeing teens giving back to the community. In addition, the confidence that you'll gain from speaking to people is invaluable. Plus, you're an advocate for pet responsibility, as your presence with a well-behaved dog motivates people young and old to spend quality time and to properly train their own dogs.

How to Become a Junior Handler

Want to be a therapy dog handler? You and your dog will work as a team to bring a little joy and smiles to many people who may just need a little lift. So how do you get started?

- A junior handler must be 12 to 17 years old. (Parent involvement is required, so please talk with your parents first.)
- Your dog must be at least 1 year old and can be any breed or mixed breed. (Wolf or coyote mixes are not allowed.)
- You must either own or have a close relationship with your dog for at least 6 months before testing.
- Your dog must be healthy. A wellness exam, negative fecal test, and current rabies vaccine/titer are required.
- Your dog must have a good and calm temperament.

There is no cost for you and your dog to go through the evaluation process with an ATD Tester/Observer. Please check our website for a Tester/Observer near you.

What Makes a Good Therapy Dog?

We look for well-mannered, well-behaved dogs that enjoy meeting people. ATD doesn't require formal training, certifications, or tests other than our own. ATD is open to register any breed of dog except wolf or coyote mixes because the rabies vaccination is not proven to be effective with those breeds.

- A dog at least 1 year old;
- A dog with a calm and gentle disposition; and
- A dog that is attentive to its handler

Halle

Providing Much Needed Therapy During A Trying Year

Halle, a nine-and-a-half-year-old golden retriever, became certified as a therapy dog by the Alliance of Therapy Dogs in January 2019. From 2019 until 2020, she provided comfort, promoted smiles, decreased anxiety, and increased general happiness to nursing home patients, health care providers, special needs students and adults, as well as Ohio University students. Halle visited the local hospital (O'Bleness Memorial Hospital), outpatient clinic, oncology treatment center, special needs school, adult workshop, The Laurels of Athens, and Ohio University. However, when the COVID-19 pandemic hit, Halle's visits were placed on hold.

After vaccines became available in January 2021, it was requested by the hospital's head of volunteer services for Halle to return to visit the different hospital departments and staff. At that time, patients were not allowed therapy visits due to the still ongoing status of the virus.

The hospital staff reported that Halle's visits brought happiness during these challenging time for hospital workers.

In July 2021, she was allowed to see hospital patients again, which was enthusiastically welcomed. A month later in August, she was honored by the hospital's volunteer department as 'service in excellence volunteer.' She had a tree and plaque placed on the hospital grounds and was featured in the local newspaper (Athens Messenger) under the headline, "Halle Helps Healthcare Heroes." Added to this, in December, she was featured in the book "Love and Loss: The Storied Nature of Nursing Home Care," by Carolyn Lewis.

To say that Halle meant so much to many people this past year is an understatement. During this past year, she has provided much needed support to her local community and hopefully will continue for years to come.

Helping Out Our Healthcare Heroes

Many organizations have been affected by the COVID-19 pandemic, such as airlines, hotels, restaurants, schools and almost all customer service activities. Perhaps no enterprise has been more greatly impacted than hospitals and other health services facilities. Although typically focused upon helping to enhance the well-being of patients, the role of the therapy dog has expanded to also include maintaining staff morale and reducing the stress experienced by hospital employees during these unprecedented times.

According to Karla Reese, volunteer services manager, Pardee UNC Healthcare, "Therapy dogs have always been very well received by our patients and staff. Since the advent of Covid, pet therapy has become an even more important role in our hospital. Our skilled pet handlers, and their dedicated companions have provided much needed stress relief to a variety of staff members including radiology, emergency department, physicians, nursing assistants, and administration. One nurse said, "She can feel her stress melting away," when she pets one of our dogs. You can see staff members automatically smile when they see their furry friends walking in the hall. The pet therapy teams have developed a close relationship with our staff members. Our staff have taken pictures of our pets and have them posted in their departments."

This expanded role of therapy dogs serving in health care facilities has not only demonstrated their well-developed sense of empathy but has also showcased their unique contribution to improved employee morale and workplace satisfaction.

Enter Pardee UNC Healthcare volunteer therapy dog, Rocky, a nine-year-old, red fawn-colored greyhound with almost three years of service with ATD. He is a gentle canine who has demonstrated consistent qualities of patience and congeniality while also fostering much humor and positive interaction amongst Pardee employees.

A typical visit for Rocky starts with stopping at the front desk of the Pardee Hospital, a 220-bed regional medical center, and logging in our time of arrival and describing our planned visits for the day. At this time, both our ATD identification cards and hospital volunteer identification badges may be checked and, if required, a protective face mask is issued. We then visit the hospital's admissions office and some of the outpatient clinic areas, as well as the phlebotomists who serve in the clinical laboratory. Additional visits take place in the orthopedic unit, materials management, pharmacy locations, environmental services, the hospital chaplain's office among others. During a typical visit, Rocky and I will cover some 15 units and departments while visiting with approximately 50-60 hospital staff members. Through all of this, we must be alert to the sheer intensity of the experience with constant foot traffic, carts, gurneys, patient transporters and even 'clinical rounding' that takes place with the education of hospital staff. Imagine the intensity that Rocky experiences with all the sights, sounds and scents that he encounters, all heightened by his acute sense of smell and hearing! For this reason, I limit our visits to about 60-70 minutes, and I am very watchful of his demeanor.

The administration of Pardee UNC Healthcare and its Volunteer Services Department have been very gracious to Rocky and more than seven ATD teams. The hospital has been especially supportive in expanding our dogs' emerging role in helping to maintain high levels of employee morale during these unique and trying times. In fact, hospital leadership have treated all the therapy dogs and their volunteer handlers to special recognition dinners, offer cafeteria discounts and provided public photo displays that illustrate the importance of all handlers and their dogs to the therapy dog program. Additionally, constant updates, training and recognition are provided to all therapy dog teams. In fact, last year, therapy dogs and their handlers were featured by a local TV station which showcased their contribution to the hospital and its staff.

Our expanded role as pet therapy teams will ensure that the highest levels of patient care are maintained.

—Thomas P. Keating, Hendersonville, NC

Is it time to hang up the red heart? Become a supporting member!

There comes a time when every team faces the difficult decision to hang up our partner's red heart tag. It might be because of illness, age or death. Sometimes the decision is made for us and other times, it is up to the human to make the decision to no longer be an active Alliance of Therapy Dogs team. It's not easy letting go of that special partnership. However, there is still a way for you to be involved in ATD even after the visits stop. You can become an ATD supporting member!

What does becoming a supporting member mean? It means that for $20 per year you pay to support ATD, you continue to receive the member handbook, the newsmagazine and member communications. When the time is right and you want to become an ATD team again, you will not need to take the volunteer background check because you are still considered a member of ATD. When you notify the office that your dog has retired or has passed away, you can let the office know that you want to be transferred from active member to supporting member.

Somewhere Over the Rainbow

As puppies we must grow and learn
To walk and sit and stay.
We learn to listen to our mom
We get to play and play.

When we are grown at least a year
We get to take the test.
We have to mind our P's and Q's
We have to do our best.

So, now we all are therapy dogs
Is it work or play?
We visit friends both old and new
All takers; come what may.

We visit on throughout the years
We do our job so well.
But age is catching up to us
Look close and you can tell.

It's time for us to take a break
We'll shed a canine tear.
Time to rest our weary paws,
Retirement time is near.

A time will come when we will pass
Many hours we did log.
Time to cross the Rainbow Bridge
A retired Therapy Dog.

—Sandy Peterson, Boise, ID

Ginger was a delight for everyone whom she met. During a three-year period, we visited a memory care facility in Denver. The residents were always happy to see Ginger and have a "chat" with her. Ginger loved to talk to anyone who would listen.

Ambrosia

Alexa Carey, South Windsor, CT

Ambrosia was a gentle, loving soul – racing greyhound turned therapy dog. When she saw someone in a wheelchair, she put her head in their lap. She just wanted to give and receive love. I'm blessed to have had her in my life and to have shared her with others.

The day we adopted Mousse was one of the happiest days of our lives. She was an outstanding ambassador for the Doberman breed. She did it all: competition obedience, agility, and hundreds of therapy dog visits. Her beauty was complemented by her affectionate and gentle nature.

Annie
